QUESTION 1

During the team building phase, which of the following best describes the actions of the team?

- A. The group is uncertain of their duties
- B. Members prioritize and perform tasks
- C. Member cooperation is evident
- D. The team leader usually delegates duties

Correct Answer: A

This question requires some knowledge of team life cycles. Some authorities refer to the team life cycle phases as build, develop and optimize. Others use forming, storming, norming and performing. The building phase is an early one in which the leader provides more direction and the group is uncertain of their roles and duties (Answer a). During this period, the leader does not delegate responsibilities readily and the team usually does not have the skills and experience to prioritize and perform tasks without assistance.
