QUESTION 3

Case Study #5

Upon employment at your facility, all new employees read, demonstrate understanding, and sign Confidentiality Statements. Disclosure of confidential information is grounds for immediate dismissal. Each year, during the annual performance evaluation, every employee again reads, demonstrates understanding, and signs the Confidentiality Statement.

You are the Director of the Quality Department. Your Department has found that the femoral-popliteal bypass failure rate of one of your vascular surgeons, Dr. Z., is twice that of the national average. Members of the surgery department have reviewed that vascular surgeon's performance both by reading the medical records and by watching videos of her surgery. The Surgery Department and the Executive Committee have decided to deny reappointment for this surgeon.

Lucille X, the mother of one of your quality coordinators, has severe peripheral vascular disease. She was admitted to your facility and has an angiogram. The angiogram shows that she should have a femoralpopliteal bypass. She had told you that she would be in your facility and asked you to visit her. You are now fulfilling that promise and are also bringing her flowers. While pausing to knock on her door, you hear your employee, Mary

A. , vehemently state to her mother, "Mom, Dr. Z is z quack; half of her bypass surgeries fail. You must have Dr. DoGood!" Referring to Case Study #5, what do you do as Director of the Quality Department?

B. Seek the advice of the facility's legal counsel.

C. Immediately dismiss Mary G upon her arrival back in the department.

D. Walk into Lucille's room and state that Dr. Z is a fine surgeon and also advise Mary G to lower her voice.

E. Upon Mary G's arrival back in the department, give her a written warning.
